INTRODUCTION

The MLA's Mission

The Modern Language Association promotes the study and teaching of languages and literatures through its programs, publications, annual convention, and advocacy work. The MLA exists to support the intellectual and professional lives of its members; it provides opportunities for members to share their scholarly work and teaching experiences with colleagues, discuss trends in the academy, and advocate humanities education and workplace equity. The association aims to advance the many areas of the humanities in which its members currently work, including literature, language, writing studies, screen arts, digital humanities, pedagogy, and library studies. The MLA facilitates scholarly inquiry in and across periods, geographic sites, genres, languages, and disciplines in higher education that focus on communication, aesthetic production and reception, translation, and interpretation. Through the Association of Departments of English and the Association of Departments of Foreign Languages, the MLA also supports the work of department chairs and directors of graduate studies.

The MLA Today

Founded in 1883, the Modern Language Association of America is one of the world's largest scholarly associations; it has nearly 25,000 members in 100 countries. MLA members host an annual convention and other meetings and sustain a wide-ranging print and electronic publishing program that includes books, journals, style guides, and an international bibliography. Drawing on studies and reports produced by the MLA staff and MLA committees and collaborating with related organizations, MLA members engage in a variety of advocacy projects that pertain to the association's mission.

Vision

The MLA must be able to attract members in a growing range of fields and professions, represent the needs and interests of those members as they encounter increasingly challenging job prospects and employment conditions, and foster greater public support for the study and teaching of language, literature, writing, media, and culture. To do so, the association must offer a rich, flexible, sustainable variety of services that enhance its members' professional lives, while maintaining the stable revenue base needed to provide these services.

Overarching Goals

Over the next five years, we will focus our efforts on:

1. Outreach: Increase the MLA's reach through focused efforts to develop the association's audience and strengthen the engagement of members and constituents.
2. Careers and the Convention: Expand the range of career services provided by the MLA and refocus the convention around increased opportunities for engaging in professional development.
3. Advocacy: Improve the MLA's effectiveness as an advocate for its members and their professional concerns.
4. Publications: Strengthen the value provided by the MLA's publications and develop other services that can provide stable revenue to sustain the association's future.

These goals will be achieved through a number of strategies, described in the following pages.
